

Am I being harmed?

- Are you being hit by someone you care about and trust, (e.g., family member, partner/spouse, caregiver?)
- Is someone constantly putting you down? Calling you names?
- Is someone isolating you from friends, family, grandchildren?
- Stealing or destroying your property or accessibility devices?
- Is someone threatening to or is abusing your pet or service animal?
- Are you being forced to do sexual acts that make you feel uncomfortable?
- Is someone monitoring your emails, text messages, or the websites you visit? Are they posting false or hurtful information online?

- Is someone taking your money, (e.g., Social Security checks, retirement pension or disability payments?) or ruining your credit? or limiting your access to your finances?
- Is someone controlling or stealing your medications, or withholding access to medications such as insulin or other prescription drugs?
- Is someone threatening to leave you all alone, put you in a nursing home, divorce you, or commit suicide if you leave them?

If any of these are happening to you, reach out for help.

Elder Abuse can be extremely difficult to talk about. It's important to know that you are not alone, it's not your fault and there are resources available.
